PROFILE

- » For the 10th time, Southeastern Louisiana University's Southeastern Channel has been recognized as the "Best College Television Station in the South." The channel earned first place "Best of South" honors for the fourth year in a row and the seventh time in the past 10 years at the annual Southeast Journalist Conference. Its seven years of winning "Best College TV Station" since 2013 are the most by any university in the southeast region of the U.S. During that time, when the Southeastern Channel did not win first place, it won second place.
- » Southeastern was honored by the Louisiana Foundation against Sexual Assault (LaFASA) with the Ally of the Year award.
- » The Southeastern Louisiana University Laboratory School celebrated an improved report card. The school performance increased by 2.2 points, and the Lab School remains the only 'A' rated school in Tangipahoa Parish. Lab School Director Steven Labbe said the school's score improved from 94.3 to 96.5, which means their students grew academically even through the pandemic.
- » The student staff of The Lion's Roar, Southeastern Louisiana University's student newspaper, brought home nine awards from the annual Louisiana Press Association Better Newspaper Competition. The Lion's Roar, garnered first place in "Best New Photo" and second place accolades in the "General Excellence", "Best Front Page", and "Best News Story" categories.
